Mines and Mining Stocks

OGDEN TALENT'S

In Three Years Great Bodies of $20 Milling Ore Are

AUSTIN.

George D. Williamson, manager of the developed. United Verde Mining company's properties at Golden, Nye county, Nev., is in the city for the first time in many who have been backing the proposition for the past three years and who are now beginning to appreciate the fact that they own a valuable mine. "Golden," said Mr. Williamson yester-day, "is about seventy miles west of south from Austin and about fifty miles north of Tonopah. We are opening up some exceedingly large bodies of ore in some exceedingly large bodies of ore in the property which I am willing to bank my reputation upon will average better than $20 per ton, mostly in gold. Average assays indicate a value of $32 in gold and eleven ounces silver, but $20 ore is what we claim the mine will stand up for. We have now something like 72,000 tons of this character of ore in wight and on the We have now something like 22,000 tons of this character of ore in sight and on the dumps, while the character of the development work done is such that it will not require much more development to block out a tonnage of more than double the amount stated. We have ample water with which to handle a large tonnage that can be piped right to the mine and we are now seeking a chance to get the property equipped for the milling of the property equipped for the milling of the

Mr. Williamson modestly contends that his company has a genuine, legitimate mining proposition, one that has never been boosted and one that has never gone to the public for support. The small to the public for support. The small bunch of stockholders have been putting in their own money and paying their way as they went. They have now reached a stage where more money than they are able to dig up is going to be required to make the proposition pay out on a submake the proposition pay out on a substantial basis and Manager Williamson frankly admits that that is the reason why he is here.

BINGHAM CON.'S FUTURE.

Heinze May Pull It Through, Thoug Boston Is Skeptical.

The shares of the Bingham Consolidated Mining company are selling at $17. This quotation represents a selling value for the property of $3,550,000, which figure includes $1,000,000 bonds. There are 150,000 shares outstanding, says a Boston publishares outstanding, says a boscor cation.

The Bingham proposition first and last represents a capital expenditure of not far from $6,000,002. The company was toated in 1898 on the basis of 200,000 shares at $5 per share. Later this capital was cut in halves and 50,000 shares sold at $50 per share. Then $1,000,000 convertible bonds were issued, which, together with is were issued, which, together $1,500,000 which has gone into the property from earnings, foots up the $6,900,00 erty froiz earnings, foots up the $6,000,000 above reserved to.

It cannot be defied that from a copper-producing standpoint Bingham has been a disappointment to those who first embarked in the enterprise, but they stoutly maintain that with the money which has gone into the exploration of the property, into the creation of ore reserves, for the erection of a smelter, for the railroad and for the Mascot tunnel, the proposition is today selling at ridiculous figures,

F. A. Heinze is now the dominating power in the management of Bingham. He and the interests he represents probably own 40,000 share, possibly more, and much of this stock cost between $50 and $35 per share.

much of this stock cost between $50 and $35 per share.

One of the most important assets of the company is its ownership of the Mascot tunnel. This project represents an expenditure of $300,000, and is of strategic value, not only to the Bingham property itself, but to Mr. Heinze's Ohio Copper company. Mr. Heinze proposes to pay the Bingham company a rental of 10 per cent on the cost of the Mascot tunnel for its use in opening up the Ohio ground. He will also treat Bingham concentrating ores free of charge in return for the location granted him at the mouth of the Mascot tunnel and for the use of the water coming therefrom.

mascot tunner and for the use of the water coming therefrom.

Mr. Heinze is known to be confident regarding the ultimate value of the Bingham proposition, but the stock marketwise has been left to take care of it-wise has been left to take care of itself.

No final decision has been reached with respect to removal of the smelter, and there have been increasing evidences that the farmers in the Bingham valley are less insistent regarding the smelter fume troubles now that they see there is a prospect of removal of the various smelters from their present location and dthe consequent damage to general business as a result thereof.

The Bingham company has never issued an annual report; even a balance sheet has yet to reach the stockholders, although spasmodic statements of monthly earnings have now and then been forthcoming. The proposition must still be considered in the transition stage, and will probably so remain until some final decision has been arrived at regarding the smelter situation.

ROSEBUD-RATTLER SHOWS UP FINE ORE

J. H. McChrystal and L. A. Jeffs are back from Rosebud and both are in high feather over conditions at the new camp. During their stay at camp they made a careful examination of the property of the Rosebud Rattler property in which they are both largely interested. They brought back a lot of samples from the ledge in the Lookout claim and some of the croppings from Rattlesnake claim, near the southern limits of the company's near the southern limits of the company's ground. Assays were obtained yesterday.

Tintic district, this state, is thoroughly impressed with the possibilities of the ground and expresses the opinion that a first-class, high-grade producer will be a considered over the private wires of James A. Pollock & Co., were as follows:

A large force of men is now employed at the Brown Palace and the number is being added to all the time. The Dreamland property shows eighteen inches of months. Mr. Williamson's company is largely made up of Ogden railroad men, property, the White Alps and a number of other propositions are making history

MINING STOCK EXCHANGE. Business Flattens Out and Brokers Take Things Easy.

There was not enough doing on the mining exchange yesterday to give brokers a chance to keep their voices trained. During the two regular and open board calls, and including the sales made in unlisted stocks of which no reports are furnished, a total of only 20,600 shares of stock changed hands. The value of the day's business was $18,175.50. Most of the trading done was of a professional character and in a number of cases prices were shaved down materially. There was no significance in the action of the market, other than the utter lack of public participation, and it begins to look as though a period of inactivity, with occasional signs of life in this or that specialty, would be the rule. There was not enough doing on the min-would be the rule.

SUCCESS AT CACTUS RECALLS SOME HISTORY

A year ago negotiations were on be-tween the Guggenheims and Samuel New-house for a consolidation of the Utah Copper company and the Boston Consoli-Copper company and the Boston Consolidated company through the formation of a new company in which there was to be an exchange of shares on the basis of one share of the new stock for two and one-half shares of Utah Copper and one share of new stock for three shares of Boston Consolidated, says the Boston News Bureau. News Bureau.

The Newhouse interests refused to consider a sale of the Boston Consolidated unless the Cactus mine of the Newhouse Miles & Smelters was taken over at the same time on the basis of ten shares of Newhouse for each share of stock in the the Cactus on any basis, and the gap between the Newhouse and Guggenheim interests became wider when it was demanded that the Boston Consolidated and the Utah companies be taken over on the same basis—two and one-half shares of old for one of new.

At that time the stock of the Cactus company was selling for less than $5 per share. Within the past year, however, the Cactus mine has run into bonanza ore. It is now outputting 1,000,000 pounds of copper per month and earning in excess of $200,000 per month, and promises to double this output within a year, while the Boston Consolidated company in the same time has opened up rich ore bodies in its suiphide property and its porphyry deposits are now in condition to furnish as large a tonnage as the Utah Copper company.
